New York wasn't built in a day. All attractions have a rich history behind them. In the ten-hour tour we will visit many historic sights and learn something new about them. It will start in the New York City Hall Park. The park is located in the civic Center of Lower Manhattan. A guide will already be waiting there and will visit and explain all the sights to you. From there you will take a bus to the next sight and will arrive around 11:30am. The next sight you will see is St. Paul's Chapel, which is the oldest surviving church in Manhattan. It is a must-see when taking a historical sightseeing tour in NYC. Before you move on you can have a short break. In this time you can drink something or go to the toilet if you have to. Around 12:30am you will keep going and move on to the Wall Street historic district. It's a history buff's paradise, composed of 21 sites listed on the National Register of Historic Places. At 2pm there will be a break where you can eat lunch. There are many restaurants where you can try traditional American dishes. After the break the next stop you will visit is Ellis Island. You will arrive by ferry at 3:30pm and stay there until 6pm. Liberty Island is one of the most popular islands in NYC. And there's a reason why. The Statue of Liberty is located on this island. There's a lot to know about this island and the statue. After we take the ferry back we will see the last sight. The "Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum", which features an unparalleled collection of American Fighter ships and planes onboard a real decommissioned aircraft carrier. The end of the tour would be at 8pm.

Wall Street Historic District (from 1pm - 2pm)

Liberty Island (from 3:30pm - 6pm)

Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum (6:30pm - 8pm)

There's no equipment you need to take with you but I would recommend bringing a camera to take pictures of the sights, to bring money for lunch and something to drink. The total price is 140$ per person. The tickets for bus and the ferry are included, but you need to buy food by yourself. You can book the tour in the travel agency but be fast because only 20 people can take a part in the tour.
